Whats is DAB?

Analog radio transmission has reached its limits for some time. The available FM frequencies are fully occupied and this means that it is no longer possible to broadcast new programmes. The digitalisation of the media world is evolving and DAB+ is now a modern radio offering more programmes in digital quality, new multimedia services and ease of use. DAB+ is digital terrestrial radio broadcasting, also known as Digital Radio. You don't need an internet connection to receive it, it can be easily tuned into a standard telescopic (pull-out) antenna placed on the radio. Digital radio is now broadcast throughout Europe.

The advantages of the system:

- High quality and clear sound without noise
- Easy program selection
- No internet connection required
- Accompanying multimedia data
- Picture and text information on the radio display
- Expanded programme and genre offerings
- More traffic information
- Energy saving compared to FM broadcasting
- Warning message system EWF ASA
